Jewish Children in Galicia Listed as Catholics

Warsaw (J. P. A.)—During the last census, taken a few weeks ago, the public school teacher of Karowitza and other Galician villages listed all their Jewish pupils as "Roman Catholics."

This false return was made intentionally and with a political object in view—to create a false statistic, as a basis for the claim that Galicians are mostly of Polish origin.

The protest of the Jewish parents and children against this outrageous fraud has proved unavailing, and a special report of the matter has been forwarded to the Jewish deputies at Warsaw.

LITHUANIAN SOCIALISTS OPPOSE JEWISH AUTONOMY

Kovno (J. P. A.)—The Socialist party of Lithuania issued a public statement declaring its opposition to the granting of autonomy to the Jews of Lithuania, with the right of representation in the Cabinet. "These privileges are of use only to the bourgeoisie. The Jewish workers do not need it, nor do they desire it."

They want only the official recognition of the Jewish language and Jewish national schools, and these demands the Lithuanian Socialist party and the Socialist members of Parliament will support with all their power and might.

HOSPITAL FOR JEWISH WAR ORPHANS OPENED IN GALICIA

Lemberg (J. P. A.)—A new hospital was recently dedicated in the city of Dembina for the use of sick Jewish war orphans.

The hospital has accommodation for fifty patients, and is situated on the edge of the largest forest in Galicia, affording an excellent and ideal location from the climatic standpoint.

The money which the building and equipping of this hospital required was donated by the "American Joint Relief Committee."

Berlin (J. P. A.)—A local evening paper prints an interview with a Czechist leader, and in the course of the conversation the speaker mentioned the fact that during the late war Jews, especially those from Moscow, Kiew and Warsaw, took an active part in the liberation of the Czechs.

A Warsaw merchant, Fisher by name, donated 50,000 rubles for the Czech movement, and many other Jews participated actively in the revolution. The following Jews played a prominent part: Captain Zeifert, Captain Prager and Wagner.

MOTHER AND SON RESCUED

Near Double Drowning

Mrs. Sarah Granatstein and Her Son, Harry, Pulled out in Exhausted Condition

Mrs. Sarah Granatstein

Shier Mendelson

When they got out beyond their depth while bathing in Wilcox Lake Sunday afternoon, Mrs. Sarah Granatstein and her son, Harry, of 95 Oxford Street, had a narrow escape from drowning. They would undoubtedly have gone to a watery grave had it not been for the prompt action of Shier Mendelson, son-in-law of Mrs. Granatstein, who also lives at 95 Oxford Street; and Harold Birch, of 306 Earlscourt Avenue, who went to their rescue.

With the aid of water-wings and partially supported by her son, who is himself unable to swim, Mrs. Granatstein was out in the lake a distance of about 150 feet from the shore, at which point the water is still shallow. So engrossed in his work of holding up his mother was Granatstein that he did not notice they were getting further and further from shore until he suddenly plunged into a hole above his head.

Mrs. Granatstein, becoming aware of her son's plight, made a plucky attempt to assist him, and even tried to release the water wings about her body in order to transfer them to him. She only succeeded in dislodging them from a correct position, and herself went under. The plight of the two bathers was not realized by scores of other swimmers in the near vicinity, and it is probable that mother and son would have drowned within the reach of several, had it not been for Mr. Mendelson, who just then noticed them struggling in the water.

Harry Granatstein — Harold Birch

Being an expert swimmer, Mendelson quickly covered the 150 feet of water separating him from the struggling bathers, and in his wake came scores of other swimmers, including Birch. Mendelson was the first to reach the two and his first act was to get their heads above water. Then while he brought Granatstein to shore, Birch rescued Mrs. Granatstein.

Although Mendelson was able to effect the rescue of Granatstein with comparatively little difficulty, Birch met with considerable difficulty. Mrs. Granatstein, who was in a bad way from swallowing water, and excited, threw her arms about his neck and pulled him down several times. Artificial respiration was used on the couple when they were brought to shore and proved effective, although it was feared for a time that Mrs. Granatstein had got beyond the aid of human hands.

Mendelson was at one time amateur swimming champion of Canada. He is also the holder of a national U.S.A. championship won in Philadelphia in 1921, and holds instructor's certificate from the Royal Life-Saving Society. He won the across-the-bay swim last year.

Washington Jew Honored by His City

Washington (J. P. A.)—The Board of Education of this city, at its recent meeting, elected Abraham Simon as its president.

The Board of Education is charged with the care for and control of all the educational institutions in the city.

PHILADELPHIA TAILORS DECLARE GENERAL STRIKE

Philadelphia (J. P. A.)—All the custom tailors of the city—about seven thousand workers, mostly Jews, have declared a general strike to improve the working standards in the tailoring industry in Philadelphia.

5,000 CAPMAKERS STRIKE IN NEW YORK

New York (J. P. A.)—Five thousand capmakers in this city, mostly Jewish workers, have declared a strike to unionize all shops and to enforce the closed shop in the capmakers' industry in New York.

Riga, (J. P. A.)—In many parts of the hunger-stricken regions a real miracle has occurred. The fields are bearing though there was no planting this year.

This miracle is explained by the fact that the seeds of the previous year have remained in the bowels of the earth, and on account of the lack of rain, have not come to the surface then.

But it is a miracle, nevertheless, and it is a pity that it didn't happen all through the hunger-stricken region.

PERSONALITIES

BY OBSERVER

(New York Special to The Canadian Jewish Review)

In the last issue of the REVIEW, we spoke of Reisen, the Yiddish writer. Perhaps your interest has been sufficiently awakened to wish to know more of that remarkable group who slave away neither for lucre nor glory, for of each their reward is slim.

The hero for this week shall be taken from his ancient desk in the offices of "The Day," and placed before you as an example rare in Yiddish journalism, an example of an interviewer.

A Jewish newspaper serves its readers as newspaper, daily and monthly magazine and family journal. For a combination of various features, Hearst's output has no superior claims over the Yiddish newspaper. Perhaps because of this, the reporter is a person practically unknown to the Yiddish editor. Reporters are ignoble individuals to be passed by with a corner smile by the staff of a Yiddish paper; in a Yiddish newspaper everyone is a writer and everyone feels editorial responsibility heavy on his shoulders. With the omission of the report, it naturally follows that the reporter's closest relation, the interviewer, should also be taboo and so it is as a matter of double interest that we can introduce you to Mr. S. Dingol, whose chief duty on "The Day" is to write dramatic criticism, but whose main literary love at this writing is to bring the art of interviewing as we "goyim" know it, to the Yiddish world.

Mr. Dingol has succeeded in bringing at least this one phase of journalism up-to-date in a Yiddish newspaper. In 1918, he was the first newspaper man to interview Major-General Bell, Commander of the 77th Division, which at that time was training at Camp Upton. From what we have written above, you will surmise that this required enterprise on Mr. Dingol's part. Then, again, he is one of the very few men to whom Justice Brandeis has ever granted an interview. Of course, to the average reader, an interview with Justice Brandeis may not be epoch, but those who have felt the tide of our politics will understand that such an interview is of surpassing interest. The Brandeis story was written at the time of the famous split in the Zionist ranks and it was broad casted throughout the Jewish world.

Recently Mr. Dingol established a record for lengthy interviews. He spent fifteen hours with Prof. Weitzman on a story. It was begun in one town, continued through several intermediary stops and ended many hundreds of miles from where it started. This interview also was of such news value as to be reprinted in most of our journals.

The case of Henry Ford also absorbed his interest and he took a trip to Fordland, where he conducted an investigation as to the Ford Jewish complex

In London Mr. Dingol obtained a story from Baron Leopold de Rothschild and attached to this interview there is a curious anecdote. After the topic under discussion had been finished with, Mr. Dingol noticed that the baron was directing at him some personal queries, the reason for which he found it hard to understand. He hinted at the remuneration the paper paid and was it sufficient? Was his family well? And questions of a similar nature. And as the newspaper man replied in each instance that conditions were satisfactory with him, the baron became more and more irritated until at last he burst out: "But at least you must take some cigars with you!" He touched a bell and soon a butler brought down a box of fifty choice cigars with which the bewildered interviewer was presented. Later Mr. Dingol learned of the tradition that no one who visited the Rothschild home for the first time must leave empty-handed.

Aside from his work in interviewing, Mr. Dingol also conducts the art of the sob-sister on his paper. This is no derogatory remark, because, let us acquaint you with a professional secret, the head of a well known newspaper syndicate told us recently that the best features he could sell to his newspaper clients were those written by the ladies of the press, more endearingly remembered by the fraternity by the title we have quoted above.

Two of these articles Mr. Dingol wrote on behalf of a fresh air fund for the needy children of the East side of New York and a man in impoverished circumstances, and in both cases the response was well above the thousand mark.

Here we have introduced you to a newspaper man who writes in Yiddish, and the spirits of Greeley, Dana and Webster and the other of our respected forefathers of printer's ink know how few of them there are.

As far as we know, F. P. A.'s column is an exclusive privilege to New York readers and is not syndicated. Therefore we will take the pleasure of distributing a sample of Mr. Franklin P. Adam's "Conning Tower" from the "World" far and wide and take some credit for his popularity. Below you will read a burlesque on Wagner's "Walkuere." Incidentally it will afford you somewhat of a change from the stuff which you must read here week after week.

Sir Philip Sassoon for the Peerage—Mr. Jacob Epstein's Activities—Latest Palestine Idea—University, etc., Honors—House of Commons on Imports and Exports—Railways—Telegraph and Telephone Reconstruction in Palestine—Dr. Weizmann in France—Jews Now Blamed for Rand Trouble.

London, June 22, 1922.

Among those who are marked for the peerage in the near future is Sir Philip Sassoon. The part he has played recently in politics has been particularly prominent and he is everywhere regarded as one of the Prime Minister's most promising young men. Sir Philip Sassoon is still unmarried, and seeing that besides having brilliant political prospects he is rich beyond the dreams of avarice, it is needless to say that many a mother has had her eye upon him as just the "parti" she would like to accept for a son-in-law.

Mr. Jacob Epstein is engaged upon a sculpture intended for Eretz Yisrael. Professor Geddes, who has designed a plan for the Jerusalem University, has suggested that two historic Jewish figures should be placed at the entrance. The block of stone sent to Mr. Epstein, will allow him only to model a bust out of it. Upon this he is now at work, but until it is finished, which will be in a month or two, he will not disclose the subject it is to represent. The sculptor has arranged to do a full length figure for Palestine—possibly for the University—as soon as he receives from the land a block of stone large enough for the purpose.

An "American" seaside resort, I should think, is probably the very latest Palestine idea. I am informed there is to be a casino and two bathing establishments, all illuminated with electric light, at Tel-Aviv.

Jews featured well in the Cambridge University Tripos results. Without invidiousness, we feel we can single out two, says the "Jewish World," A. Yellin, Christ's and Hebrew Teachers' Training College, Jerusalem, who was successful in the Oriental Languages Tripos and has since been awarded a scholarship, and S. Ussishkin, whose name appears in the Law Tripos. For this is yet another welcome sign of the new Jew in Palestine who is going to associate in the mind of all the world with that land the best in the Jewish spirit—in learning and in culture—instead of the worst—in palpable bigotry and doubtful virtue.

Congratulations, too, are due to the Rev. B. B. Lieberman, M.A., who has passed Class 3 at Gray's Inn in the bar examination in criminal law and procedure. If Mr. Lieberman is called to the bar while still retaining his post at the Brighton Synagog, he will be the first acting Jewish minister to have become a barrister in this country. Dr. A. Hockman and Rabbi Dr. Samuel Daiches were called after they had ceased to be ministers of congregations, while Rabbi Dr. Moses Hyamson, now in New York City, passed a bar examination when he was Dayan, but did not proceed farther. Mr. Lieberman is a son-in-law of Rabbi Harris Cohen.

Replying to Mr. F. Wise (C. U., Ilford) last Thursday, Mr. Churchill said: The amounts of imports and exports to and from Palestine in 1921 were as follows: Imports, £5,665,000; exports, £824,000. 34 per cent. of the imports came from the United Kingdom and about 15½ per cent. from India, Australia and Egypt. Of the exports, 60 per cent. went to Egypt and 15½ per cent. to the United Kingdom.

Mr. Winston Churchill, replying to Sir William Joynson-Hicks, said: "I am informed that the cost of the Kantara-Rafa Railway was £1,300,000, exclusive of labor charges. The cost of maintenance for the current financial year is estimated at about £202,000. The revenue from traffic other than military is estimated at the present time at about 70 per cent. of the total earnings. The control of the railway is now vested in the Air Ministry, acting on behalf of the Colonial Office. The Palestine Government, which works the railway, shares any profit or loss equally with H. M. Government. It had not been asked to take over the ownership of the railway, which is situated in Egyptian territory. The railways in Palestine include a section of the Hedjaz railway, the Jaffa-Jerusalem railway and the railway constructed by the British army during the war. All these railways are now operated by the Palestine Government. An expert valuer sent out by the Disposals and Liquidation Commission is now engaged in estimating on a commercial basis the value for disposal purposes of the railway constructed by the British army and of the work done on the other sections. Both the British Government and the Palestine Government have agreed to accept the valuation of this expert, and the amount fixed by him will be treated as a capital debt from Palestine to the Imperial Government, bearing interest at a rate to be fixed later and payable by such instalments as the financial condition of the country may permit."

In reply to a question by Sir William Joynson-Hicks, Mr. Churchill wrote: "I am unable to give figures as to the cost of (telegraphic and telephonic) reconstruction. The whole system, with a few minor exceptions, was handed over by the military authorities to the Palestine Government on October 1, 1920. The value of the work so transferred has been provisionally agreed between the two parties at £30,000, and this amount, or the revised amount finally determined, will be treated as part of the capital debt of Palestine to H. M. Government."

SOME THOUGHTS ON VACATION

The coming of the summer solstice brings with it for most of us a yearning and tugging to get away from our offices, shops or stores. The very walls of our domiciles begin to crowd in on us and we live in the haunting fear that if we do not get out into the wilds and open country, where trees, flowers, rippling brooks and great lakes beckon tantalizingly, that these walls will mash us in their oppressiveness. It is the call and the urge for change which torments us.

Under modern conditions, people have got into the habit and cultivated the tendency to go on a vacation and make a change of habitat for a while during the hot summer months. This habit is the result of a desire for physical comfort. It is an answer to our wish for a change and an opportunity to meet new pals, see new scenery, get away from ourselves and those who surround us during the year. We talk ourselves into taking a vacation (ofttimes at a greater expense than we can afford) because we have cultivated and nurtured the feeling that with every passing month we are getting more and more fatigued and our store house of physical and mental energy is running lower and lower, so that we barely get over the eleventh month which preceeds the four weeks of our vacation. Oh, what a relief and delight when we are all packed and actually travelling away to the "Fountain of Energy," where our batteries will be re-energized and recharged with the elixir of life. Here we shall find a new lease on another eleven months of life. The joy of anticipation is only comparable in intensity and direct ratio to the chagrin of disappointment which annually fills us at the end of our vacation when we discover that what we looked forward to was but a mirage—a delusion. Back we come to our desks and counters and benches in the hope of better luck next year.

It should be hardly necessary to repeat that a vacation in our modern society is the privilege of the privileged classes—the rich and well-to-do. These are usually composed of what Veblen calls the "leisure class," that is, those people who are mental workers, "clean-collared," in contrast to those who are called physical workers, e.g., who earn their bread by the sweat, not merely of their brows, but their bodies as well. It should, however, be stated that there is no hard and fast line between these two types of workers.

In the modern complex of labor, there is much confusion about what is to be considered work and what play. To the man in the theater seat, the performance is play, whereas to the actor it is work. In proportion as the activity is intrinsically satisfying to a man, he calls it play, whereas in proportion as it is intrinsically annoying, he calls it work. In all work there is the primary irreducible element of earning a living thereby, even if it is satisfying. It involves the creation of a certain kind of economic value. The great tragedy of modern society is that most men work six days in order to play on the seventh. There are too many misfits—square pegs in round holes. Work is, therefore, distasteful, creating annoyance, ennui and fatigue.

What is fatigue? Many theories have been propounded in answer to this query. There is the mechanical theory of fatigue which states that an activity in and of itself weakens its own efficiency by being exercised without rest, just as a reservoir or battery lowers its pressure and exhausts itself by discharging constantly without refilling and recharging. The human body is conceived of as a battery charged with potential physical and mental energy, which discharges through work. Rest is, therefore, regarded as an opportunity for its restoration. This theory is now universally discredited. If this were the case, it would be impossible for us when all our energy seems gone, to make those final spurts which carry the athlete over the mark and the worker to success. In these final spurts, we seem to get a second wind and tap tanks of energy which seemed empty and discharged.

The biological theory of fatigue maintains that work, without rest, becomes increasingly less satisfying because of the loss of the novelty and enthusiasm, the production of a certain intellectual nausea, sensory pain and even a headache, and because constant work without rest imposes upon us certain deprivations from the doing of things we are desirous of doing, such as preventing us through lack of sufficient leisure, from getting physical exercise, social intercourse or sufficient sleep.

The truth of it all seems to be that we are fatigued more by what we do not do or are deprived of the opportunity of doing, than from what we actually do. The solution to this very fundamental cause, not alone of fatigue but of industrial unrest and economic waste, would be the reorganization of work and the re-division of labor so that a man could shift easily from one task to another, from one field to another.

Though this theory of fatigue seems at first sight unnatural, its truth is evident in many simple experiences. Thus we actually expend more mental and physical energy while on our vacations, exercising, playing games, reading, arguing, dancing, etc., etc. Yet, these rest us because they are a relief from the strain and irritation, though not a cessation of energy. Yet, through overdoing these things on a vacation, many people return so exhausted as to require an actual rest.

The best way really to derive the benefits of a vacation and to attain increased mental and physical efficiency is to so regulate our lives as to (a) keep our general bodily health up to a high level; (b) to increase our interest and motive in our work; (c) to relieve the mind from the waste of excitement and worry. The latter is the greatest poison that the human system has to fight. In the rush and bustle of our daily grind, we cannot overestimate the value of peace of mind and equanimity as means of increasing our efficiency for work. Nothing is done by worry or excitement that cannot be done better in their absence. Hence, there is nothing but gain in saving for achievement the time and strength now spent in ferment. Too much of the life at home, school, industry, business and even the professions is still on a par with the war dance of primitive man. It is a mistake to burn down the house to roast a pig.

If our vacations could be made to conform with a sane and sensible view of work and play, they would prove profitable and enjoyable. Alas, so far as most people are concerned, we are barking up the wrong tree.

It was only necessary for us to explain our new system of "semi-finished" laundry work to Toronto women to have them ask for it by thousands. The reasons given were that it is the cheapest way of handling the family wash—it is easiest on the clothes—everything ready to use but a few articles with fussy corners, which you must finish with your own iron — no marking — no starching — and each wash done separately with pure soap in the softest water. POPE PIUS RECEIVES SIR HERBERT SAMUEL

Rome (J. P. A.)—The Pope to-day received in private audience, Sir Herbert Samuel, British Commissioner for Palestine.

Sir Herbert was received with full military honors, the only absentees being the picturesque Vatican carabineers, who had been agitating for some time for higher pay and fewer hours of service, and who, a short time before the arrival of the Commissioner, were ordered by Monsignor Pizzardo, undersecretary of the Congregation for Extraordinary Ecclesiastical Affairs, to lay down their arms and vacate their barracks. The carabineers, fifty in number, had supported two comrades who refused to go on duty.

Sir Herbert afterward said that he had a most interesting interview of a half-hour with the Pontiff in the private library. He also visited Cardinal Gasparri, Papal Secretary of State, and Count de Salis, British Minister to the Holy See.

Later Sir Herbert was received by King Victor Emmanuel, who discussed with deep interest questions relating to Palestine and the ancient rights of Italy and the House of Savoy with regard to the holy places.

Sir Herbert is leaving for Naples this evening.

Kowno (J. P. A.)—Letters have been received here from Mapus' only daughter, Dorothea, in which she asks for a package of food because she is starving. She is at Petrograd and is 72 years old.

Several Jewish organizations have taken immediate steps to relieve the needs of the daughter of the early Jewish novelist.

LITHUANIAN JEWS DEMANDING REPRESENTATION IN LITHUANIAN CONSULATES

Kowno (J. P. A.)—A deputation of the Jewish National Council, headed by Counsellor S. Rosenbaum, has presented to the Lithuanian Government a series of demands with regard to the Jewish refugees and repatriates.

One of the most important of these demands called for the appointment of a Jewish Vice-Consul for each Lithuanian Consulate in Russia, who will assure fair and equitable treatment to all Jewish applicants for the vise of their passports.

The government has taken these demands under advisement, promising to announce its decision in the not distant future.

PALESTINE DEVELOPMENT

New York—Mr. Samuel J. Rosensohn, of New York, counsel to the Palestine Development Council, and secretary of the Palestine Co-operative Company, Inc., sailed on the "Berengaria" July 11, to attend conferences to be held in London with representatives of various organizations for the formation of a corporation which is to take over and operate the Rutenberg concession for the creation of hydro-electric power in Palestine.

Wilna (J. P. A.)—The Polish military authorities of Kishneva have confiscated the home of the Jewish bank. If the bank will close it will spell the ruin of the local Jewish merchants. Local Jewish public workers are endeavoring to save the Jewish bank.

EVERY FRIDAY

While "Every Friday" is not specifically a column for the lovelorn, like all Greek restaurants, "we aim to please." When we quote on the delicate subject of holding a man's love, however, it is cautiously as the REVIEW does in using correspondence—we "disclaim responsibility for views expressed." The ones given here are expressed by Dr. Laura M. Riegelman, head of the Brooklyn Child Hygiene Bureau, in the Cleveland "News."

"Physical attractiveness is most essential, but it is only half the battle. A girl must have the mental poise, the balance wheel to keep things going smooth and straight and to hold a man's esteem and love. Ideals may sound like fairy tales and book talk, but when two people live under the same roof together, both the man and the woman must have some ideal to cling to. The woman who reads, who gives a certain amount of her time to developing some talent of her own, realizes the importance of these ideals. Books, music and religion help one to cling to youthful ideals. Even a girl with an elementary education can acquire a vast amount of education and develop a mental attraction which will grow yearly. If the average girl would spend as much time upon her brain as she does upon her coiffure and finger nails, how wonderfully attractive she would be!"

Of course it's common knowledge (among men) that men talk less than women and always about more important things. What was going on then in the American Senate recently when there was so much discussion as to whether or not the American ambassador at the Court of St. James should be recalled if he wore long pants at social functions instead of the customary knee breeches?

In a letter to Alfred Benesh, vice-president of the Cleveland I.O.B.B., James Platt White of Massachusetts upbraids Harvard for its alleged discrimination against Jewish students, saying that he will cancel the bequest of a library which he has made to the university, and urges that all Harvard periodicals be boycotted. . . . . An eye for an eye?

Someone is said to have asked at the recent Zionist convention why the Toronto Hadassah has it in for the Montreal Hadassah. Whoever said they had to have a reason, assuming this is true?

It was interesting to watch the display of energy on the part of a young Jew in a local restaurant the other day during a rainstorm. Between gulps, he would dart to the door, observe loudly that he never saw so much rain, and accompany each trip with a loud "Yoy!" And yet the "Wisconsin Jewish Chronicle" is distressed because "there has been an ominous tendency on the part of Jewish young folks to hide as much as possible their Jewish identity."

It's a monotonous year, indeed, which is without its little movement to call Jews back to Judaism, brought on by a few men suddenly realizing that something "drastic" must be done to save the faith. Such New Yorkers as Ochs, Marshall, Schiff, are the latest to assume leadership. Besides having the idea that the way to manage is to be drastic, these men also think that the movement won't take much money. Of the two ideas, the last one is the one that appeals to us.

Elisha M. Friedman says in the "Menorah Journal": "Who can say but that the repression of the Jewish people by the non-Jewish world and the Jew's feeling of inferiority have resulted in the development of the geniuses in the several sciences. Hounded for centuries and handicapped to this day, the Jew is running his race on his second wind. In the Jamesian sense, he has tapped new reservoirs of energy and effort after conquering his first fatigue. It may not be purely an accident that so many Jews have become distinguished for their achievements in science and social welfare. The imposition of a handicap is often the incentive to achievement, and perhaps in our own country the relatively slight anti-Jewish pressure may result in unusual national service by the Jew. In other words, Antisemitism may have contributed to make the Jew a pioneer, and a pace-setter." . . . . If the Antisemites would only subscribe for the "Menorah Journal," they might be persuaded that you can sometimes kill a cat with kindness.

leaders in connection with the approaching meeting of the Council of the League of Nations on the question of the mandates.

At a meeting of the South African House of Assembly, Mr. Alexander, member for Cape Town Castle, called attention to an offensive postcard which had been received by him (and, he believed, by other members), openly referring to the upheaval on the Rand as the "Bolshevik and Jew Revolution." There was no atom of truth in this allegation.

"It seems to be forgotten," said Mr. Alexander, "that a Jewish boy was publicly thanked for carrying ammunition to a band of police who were sorely pressed at Foresburg, or that many Jews on the Rand had their sons in the Transvaal Scottish, some of whom were dangerously wounded. People did not bother to look up and see how many of the men in the defence force belonged to the Jewish community. They have simply got hold of three or four names, and from that it is an easy flight to say that every Jew is a Bolshevist."

Mr. Alexander said that it was the everlasting tragedy of the Jewish race always to be blamed, because they were the easiest scapegoats.

With a tree growing in the middle and a sword stuck in it like a cozy corner in the Arverne Hotel.
Nu, one night when Hunding ain't yet come upon the five-thirty (Might'll be he's playing a little pinochle with the boys and missed his train),
Comes a feller by the name Sigmund Walinsky, all soaking wet like a fish, and dirty,
And with oser a word lays down by the open-work fireplace out of the rain.
"Might you should be so kind," he says, "I could have a drink of water?"
"Nebich I'll get it myself," says Siegel Hinda. "It's so hard here in the mountains to keep maids."
And she brings in a pitcher what Hunding for her last wedding anniversary bought her,
When in comes Hunding, looking mad like he had just went bait on a four hundred hand in spades.
Awhile they schmoos, then Hunding says to him: "Maybe Might'll be you are a relation by Wallinsky Bros. from Little Falls?"
"No," says Sigmund. "I ain't got no relations in this country. My whole mashpocha died when I was a baby.
My father, olay hasholem, came from Cracow and heisst Waelse.
One time, when my father selig is gone out fishing,
Comes a lowlife baitzeiner and murders my mother, olay hasholem, and kidnaps my little sister away.
Hunding the feller's name is, and I'm wishing
Only I should just run into that rosher some fine day."
"You should live so long!" cries Hunding, getting mad-like.
"A chuzpah, you should talk so here in my house under my very face.
To-night you can sleep here, God forbid, because you're looking kinder tired and bad-like,
But to-morrow we'll fight it a duel fight, so help me, and I'll schmier you up all over the place."
After, when Hunding's in bed and sleeping quiet,
Siegel Hinda sneaks out in the dining room, where Sigmund is laying on the floor.
"Quick!" she says. "Der Goy schlaft. Let's get out from here before he could start a riot."
So Sigmund pulls the sword out which it is stuck in the tree, and after they sing a loud song for ten minutes or half an hour, they go out the door.
In a wild place in the mountains, all rocky and hilly,
A crowd of fat circus riding girls are standing around, making an awful geschrei.
"Oi, oi, oi--yo!" they yell, which it all sounds kind of silly.
Comes a very fat one by the name Broun Hilda, who looks like maybe she is from the Heywood Broun mashpocha, and joins in the cry.
Her father Wotan, which he is the same Waelse that Sigmund tells about, only he ain't died in Cracow—his first wife Erda is her mother—
Says, "Hilda, my wife Fricka says we got to help it Hunding should win the fight.
If you only knew the life I got with that woman. If it ain't one thing, y'understand me, it's another."
And Hilda says, "I got it rachmonis for that Sigmund, but if you say so, pa, all right."
Now comes Sigmund, and Hunding after him like Jake Dempsey fighting.
When Hilda butts in, and tries to make it Sigmund should win instead.
All of a sudden Wotan rushes out, all mad and exciting.
"A business!" he says, and gives Sigmund a terrible schlag and the poor schlemiehl falls down dead.
"Nu," says Wotan to Hilda, when he afterwards found her,
"It ain't my fault, y'understand me, but my wife, unbeschrieen, says I must punish you for acting that way."
So he puts her to sleep on a rock and builds a swell bunfire around her,
And there she sleeps with the thermometer two hundred and fifty degrees in the shade. . . . A meshuggina play! FLACCUS.

RELIGIOUS JEWS BRING MONEY ON SATURDAY FOR STARVING RUSSIAN JEWS

Wilna (J. P. A.)—In the Schkaplenco Synagog, the rabbi, Moses Karelitz, permitted the people to bring money on Saturday for the starving Jews of Russia, and the congregation obeyed and brought as much as they found it possible.

The members of that synagog are religious and not rich, and yet the collection brought in about half a million marks—a great amount for these people.

FIRST JEWISH GYMNASIUM IN ESTHONIA

Revel (J. P. A.)—The cornerstone laying of the first gymnasium here was celebrated with great pomp. There were present, representatives of the government, local officials, and Jewish as well as non-Jewish organizations, and laudatory addresses of the new institutions were delivered.

POSITION OF THE PERSIAN JEWS

Jerusalem (J. P. A.) - There are about 100,000 Jews in Persia. According to the letter of the law they enjoy equal rights, but in reality they are terribly persecuted. Seven-eighths of the Jews of a certain province have been massacred. There were 4,000 Jews there, and of these about 3,500 were killed by hooligans. The rest are alive and are occupied with agriculture. The Jews of another province were compelled to become Mussulmans, but they still observe the Jewish faith in secret.

The consuls of the foreign powers do not know of the real situation because the Jews fear to tell for fear of still greater persecutions.

There is one Jewish Deputy in the Persian parliament, Dr. Ligman Nuhuri, and all the prominent physicians in the country are Jews.

This is the news of the Persian Jews, brought here by the president of the Persian Zionists, who is here now on a visit.

JEWS BESIEGE STRIKING TEACHERS TO STARVE THEM OUT

Kowno (J. P. A.)—The following tragi-comic occurrence happened at Kalwarie. The teachers of the local Hebrew gymnasium demanded higher pay and, when the managers of the school didn't agree, went out on a strike and didn't hold the scheduled examinations. The parents arrived and demanded that the examinations take place, and even threatened the teachers with violence. The teachers locked themselves in a room, which was, in turn, besieged by the parents with the intention of starving them out. This lasted an entire day and an evening when it was finally discovered that the teachers had made their escape through a window and had gone to Mariompol.

MATERIAL POSITION OF LITHUANIAN JEWS MUCH IMPROVED

Kowno (J. P. A.)—According to the statistics of the Jewish ministry, there are at the present time only 5 per cent. of the Lithuanian Jews who live on charity. A certain number of these people are elderly people who are no longer able to work and are therefore being supported either by charity or their younger relatives.

There are altogether about 100,000 Jews in Lithuania, about half of them being small merchants, and there are some house-owners, manufacturers, mechanics, and agricultural workers among them.

Y.M.H.A. SOCCER vs. ROYAL CANADIAN REGIMENT

The Y.M.H.A. football club spent Saturday afternoon, July 15, at Niagara-on-the-Lake, making the trip to meet the Royal Canadian Regiment in a league game of the T. and D. Football Association.

Many boosters accompanied the team and altogether a party of about 60 enjoyed a brilliant game and a pleasant journey.

The R.C.R.'s entertained the soccer team and all their friends at a supper, during which speeches were made, and all the visitors enjoyed the hospitality of the campers. The "Y" boys scored two goals to one of the R.C.R.'s. The "Y" soccer team was composed of the following: S. Cohen, goalkeeper; D. Chapin and M. Jubas, backs; A. Lawson, H. Franklin, and M. Lifchis, half-backs; G. Ulansky, J. Goldstein, J. Chapin, F. Dudley and L. M. Stern, forwards. An especially good game was played and mention must be made of the goalkeeping of Mr. Cohen, who saved the "Y" on more than one occasion. D. Chapin was in great form, and all the half-backs were good. H. Franklin did a fine work on the forwards. No individual could be picked out, but J. Chapin at center-forward, and L. M. Stern at outside-left, both scored good goals. The most outstanding on the team of the R.C.R.'s was their inside-left. This is only the second defeat of the R.C.R. team this season.

The "Y" soccer team will meet the Green River Shamrock team on Saturday next, July 22, at Bayside Park at 5.30 p.m. All supporters should take this opportunity to boost the "Y" team to another victory by appearing at the game.

IN the History of any strong and successful business can be found places where progressiveness has marked its advancement. As information to our friends we are first to introduce in Canada a simple and scientific method of preparing by automatic means even the most delicate Ice Cream Brick.

We fill the waxed package which contains the Ice Cream, direct from a freezer with one operation whereby hands do not touch, and hitherto numerous operations which gave a less perfect result are now done away with.

Detroit, Mich.,
July 16, 1922.

To the family Halpern,
Toronto.

Dear Friends:

I have just read in the CANADIAN JEWISH REVIEW of the sad bereavement that you have recently sustained so suddenly in the loss of your illustrious father. To console you, I find it impossible, for his demise is a personal loss to me as well. From that time, eighteen years ago, when I first had the privilege of meeting him, until a few months ago, when I saw him last, he was always to me a happy combination of reverence and true friendship. I always looked upon him as an ideal type of man we find so rare nowadays, whether it be on this or the other side of the Atlantic. His personal charm, congeniality, sincerity, tolerance to differing views and broadness of mind, always gained my admiration and increased my high esteem of him.

Not only yourselves, but Canadian Jewry at large, and the Toronto community in particular, will miss him and mourn his loss. The only possible condolence I may express to you is that I feel a life so well lived is not spent in vain; it leaves its impress on all those that have had the privilege of coming in contact with it; it serves as an inspiration towards striving to emulate living on a higher plane a better and nobler life.

I cannot pass without mention the untiring zeal that manifested itself in the work of him, in bringing about and realizing the founding and erecting of the Chestnut Street Synagog at a time when the Jewish community of Toronto was very small in number, and still smaller financially. This, and other communal work, will stand for a long time to come as a monument to his devotion to duty.

All material things perish; organizations come and go, edifices rise and fall, hills melt away, rivers dry up and wealth perishes, but the virtues of the soul of man are immortal. His life may well, indeed, serve to bring home this fact to a great many of to-day who are prone to exaggerate the value of the material.

May his soul rest in peace.

Yours sincerely,
Gershon Gelber.

OBITUARY

Loss of High-Principled Young Man Through Drowning Fatality

The drowning fatality which occurred at the Humber on Monday afternoon, July 10, causing the death of Mr. Morris Kemerman, 110 Bellevue Avenue, was indeed a very sad blow to his family and to his many close friends.

He was 25 years of age. Born in London, England, he came to Toronto with his family 10 years ago.

He was a man of strict religious principles, having been brought up by his parents in the true orthodox faith of his ancestry. He was a member of McCaul Synagog.

As a man of high moral character, he was unique. He maintained the loftiest ideals and principles and possessed exceptional mental ability.

Bestowing kindness and doing good deeds to others was a particular hobby of his. No one ever spoke an unkind word against him. He was respected, appreciated and liked by all with whom he came in contact.

An instance of his wonderful mental ability was demonstrated by the fact that he studied his full matriculation at home and secured it completely in two years, without even attending High School. He could also read a page from any book and repeat it almost in its entirety from memory.

On securing his matriculation, he began the study of pharmacy, and almost immediately displayed his remarkable talents, his quick adaptability, his strict honesty, his faithfulness and his enthusiastic zeal in the profession which he chose as his life's work.

Truly, without exaggeration, in his death, the pharmacy profession has lost a future loyal member of the craft; his intimate acquaintances have lost a faithful and constant friend, and his grief-stricken parents have lost an ideal and devoted son.

Time may heal the wound, but his memory shall ever remain engraved upon the minds and hearts of all who knew him.—W. Isaacson.

WINNIPEG

Mrs. R. Diner, Miss Gertie Diner and Mr. Nat Diner have left to spend a few weeks at Lake Manitou, Watrous, Saskatchewan.

Mr. and Mrs. N. I. Maza are receiving congratulations on the birth of a daughter.

Goldie, second youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Fishman, 508 Aberdeen Avenue, Winnipeg, was married to Dr. A. H. Silverman, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Silverman, on Wednesday, at ten o'clock. Dr. and Mrs. A. H. Silverman have left for Montreal, Quebec City, Boston and New York.

A very pretty wedding took place recently when Sophie, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. Segal, was married to Mr. Sidney Yaffa, Friday evening, at the home of the bride's parents, 544 Pritchard Avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Yaffa will reside at 260 Alfred Avenue.

A very successful pianoforte recital was given by the pupils of Miss Zoe Isaacs, at her studio, 200 Balmoral Street, on Thursday evening, July 13. Those contributing to the program were: Miss Ethel Fishman, Miss Estelle Frankfurter, Miss Eva Emma, Master Rubin Goldman, Miss Annette Abremovitch, Miss Clemie Emma, Miss Frances Emma, Miss Heloise Cohn.

The Girls' Auxiliary of the Jewish Orphanage gave a bridge on Sunday afternoon in aid of the carnival. Although the weather-man was not in the best of humors, a fairly good crowd attended. Miss "Beck" Ginsberg and Miss Pearl Finkelstein were joint convenors. The prize-winners of the afternoon were: First prize, Mrs. Harry Kaplan; second prize, Mrs. L. Keik, and third price, Miss Jean de Taube.

On Sunday evening, July 9, Cantor J. Rosenblat, who has been appearing on the concert platform in Winnipeg, gave a sacred concert, assisted by the Jewish Orphanage Band, and the children of the Talmud Torah, at the Allen Theater, in aid of the Jewish Orphanage of Western Canada, the Old Folks' Home, the Talmud Torah, and the United Hebrew Relief. The Allen Theater, which has a seating capacity of twenty-three hundred, was jammed to capacity, and there were several people eager to hear the concert who could not obtain seats. Cantor Rosenblat was very generous with his numbers, and responded to the applause in a very humorous manner.

Miss S. Piottel, 448 Boyd Avenue, has left to spend a few weeks at Winnipeg Beach, the guest of Mrs. J. Cohen, No. 2 Hazel Street.

The Jewish Orphanage Summer Carnival, held on July 11 and 12, was proclaimed by the thousands of people who attended during the two nights, to be one of the finest charity affairs ever staged in Winnipeg. Although for the past few months it has meant nothing but work for the Committees in charge, their efforts were well rewarded. Tuesday, the 11th, saw the dawn of a beautiful day, although the previous week had been one long rain storm, and at eight o'clock sharp the parade, consisting of about five hundred children, started from the back of the building, and wound its way through the grounds, taking in all parts of the grounds, and passing every booth. The children were all dressed to represent a nation of the world, or some character in biblical history. They all looked charming, and their costumes were a credit to the ladies who had charge of this particular section of the work. The parade ended in the rear of the grounds, when the crowning of the King and Queen took place. Little Miss Bessie Spivak, the Queen of the Carnival, was a very dignified little figure, and carried herself in a manner befitting a Queen. Master Irvin Levinson, as King, left nothing to be desired.

The Queen was accompanied by her Princesses, who were the remaining candidates that took part in the Queen contest: Miss Sarah Feintuch, Miss Sarah Baker, Miss Jessie Ludwig, Miss Sylvia Cates, Miss Davis and little Miss Rosenblat, the Regina candidate. The Queen and her Princesses were all presented with bouquets of carnations from the Carnival Committee.

As soon as the crowning was over, the Orphanage Band took their place on the temporary bandstand that was erected on the west side of the lawn, and played different selections. Everything by this time was in full swing, and with between six and seven thousand people on the grounds at one time, there was plenty of fun and action.

Mr. Harry Zimmerman's vaudeville show in the back of the grounds was one of the main attractions, and his clowns helped to keep the children in fits of laughter. There were pony rides for the children, and they sure did make those little ponies go.

A large space on the lawn was roped in for dancing, and a ten-piece orchestra under the leadership of Miss Judith Rackow provided a program of "peppy" music, which kept the younger folks busy.

Among the booths, which were arranged in one big midway, were the following: flowers, novelties, fish-pond, candy, cigars and cigarettes, home cooking, hot-dogs, refreshment booths, and then the various games, such as hoop-la, wheels of fortune, money, "lots of money," four to one, poker. The grounds were beautifully lighted, and the coloring was added to by the attractive costumes worn by the different girls in charge of the booths, each booth wearing a uniform costume.

On the whole, the carnival was a tremendous success in every way, and it is only to be regretted that the western supporters were not able to attend in person. However, to accommodate these generous supporters in the best way possible, the committee in charge arranged to have moving pictures taken of the carnival, which was done, and which they hope will be shown in all the towns of Western Canada in order that the out of town members of the Orphanage may be able to see some of the sights on the movies, if not in reality.

Miss Anna Hiesler, of Brandon, entertained in honor of Miss Nellie Cohen, of Stockholm, Adolph Hiesler, of Yorkton, Miss Rose Stienberg and Miss Anne Kalliff, of Saskatoon. The tables were prettily decorated with spring blooms. Mrs. Rose Steinberg poured tea and Miss Nellie Cohen cut the ices, and the Misses Annie Cohen, Lillian Cooperman and Lilian Gold assisted.

MONTREAL

Whew, it's hot! That fact, as far as Montreal is concerned at any rate, overshadows everything else in interest and importance. Other happenings are incidental, and for the most part insignificant. Life with many people is the waiting for one week-end after another and the planning, during five hot days, how to escape the heat during the remaining two.

Speaking of week-ends, we have just returned from a delightful one at the Y.W.H.A. camp in the Laurentians, near Ste. Agathe. There may be nicer ways of spending Saturday and Sunday, but we have yet to discover them. A nice place, nice people (about sixty of them), complete liberty to do as you like as long as you come in time for your meals, dancing, swimming, canoeing, tennis, and all the other regulation summer pastimes- all these constitute a highly palatable combination. The camp is in charge of Mrs. M. Wexler, who has had a great deal of experience in that direction, and who makes a perfect manager.

Not all the people in Montreal, however, are worrying about week-end parties. Some of them are forced to turn their attention in other directions. We attended a huge meeting of the garment workers of this city, called by officials of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America last Thursday afternoon at the Monument National. The point at issue was how to better conditions of labor in the clothing industry in Montreal, and the decision was to insist on union conditions everywhere. What struck us principally, however, was the preponderatingly Jewish character of the meeting. Fully ninety per cent. of the workers who attended were Jewish, most of the speakers were Jewish, and the meeting started an hour late. Outside of that, however, it was highly successful. Everyone was in good humor, in spite of the heat, and the seriousness of the meeting; there were a lot of good jokes told (mostly in Yiddish), and we enjoyed ourselves immensely. There was one speech by an Italian one by a Frenchman, and three by Jews, all delivered with remarkable fluency and power. Incidentally most of the manufacturers with whom the controversy is being waged, are also Jewish, which makes it quite a homelike party all round.

Our own prima donna, Miss Sarah Fischer, who has been doing brilliant work in opera across the water, arrived in Montreal from England on the "Melita" Saturday, and will spend a few weeks here before returning to England to fulfill further professional engagements. She will sing leading parts with the British National Grand Opera Company upon her return. Miss Fischer's work has been very highly commended by London musical critics, and her future in the world of music appears to be assured. While in Montreal she will be the guest of her sister, Mrs. Samuel Share, Park avenue.

The announcement has just been made by the McGill Conservatorium of Music that Miss Evelyn Shapiro has passed the final examination for the degree of Licentiate of Music. Miss Shapiro is well known in Montreal musical circles, and is a prominent figure at many college and other functions. Miss Bessie Herschom has successfully passed the semi-final examinations for the degree of Licentiate, while other Jewish names figure prominently on the lists of those who have passed in less advanced studies.

The list of those students who have successfully passed the "school-leaving examinations finds Jewish students in rather less prominent positions than those they usually occupy. Two Jewish names appear among the first ten, Melvyn Moe Berlind and Veeta Helen Talpis, both of Westmount High School, securing fourth and fifth places respectively. Jewish names are liberally besprinkled throughout the list.

Montrealers have learned with regret of the resignation of Mr. Jess Perlman, who has been Executive Director of the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies during the past two years. Mr. Perlman is leaving to take up important work in NewYork City in connection with Jewish delinquents. During his stay here, Mr. Perlman has been very prominent in literary circles, and was the founder and director of "The Little Masque," whose successful production of plays along little theater lines aroused great interest during the past season. He leaves to take up his new duties about September 15.

BIALIK TO CELEBRATE HIS JUBILEE IN PALESTINE

Berlin (J. P. A.)—The fiftieth birthday anniversary of the poet, Ch. N. Bialik, occurs during the coming winter. In all local Jewish circles, without any distinction of party, preparations are being made to celebrate the jubilee of this greatest of Jewish poets.

Bialik, who is now at a German cure place, has announced that he expects to be in Palestine where he will permanently settle.

This will not, however, interfere with the plans of his admirers for that celebration.

It is planned to gather a great sum of money for the establishment of some cultural institution in Palestine.

An especially handsome edition of Bialik's collected works will appear on that occasion.

Wilna (J. P. A.)—Poliesie, a tiny Jewish townlet in the Wilna region, was destroyed by fire. About 30 houses were burned down and the need is great.
